ARREST YOUNG MAN FOR RIDING ON SIDEWALK

Loren Ormsby, after entering a plea of not guilty this morning before Judge Maxfield in the Municipal court on a charge of riding a motorcycle on the sidewalk, had his case adjourned until Wednesday when he will be given his sentence. Ormsby was arrested on South Main street by the police while he drove his motorcycle along the sidewalk because of the street being in the process of repair.

SAND STORM SWEEP OVER QUARTERS IN CAMP MACARTHUR

(By Sergeant Beard.)

Camp MacArthur,
Waco, Texas, Oct. 25.

Early this morning we were awakened by the "fire call." Company M, as well as the other companies of the 32nd division, were alerted to their company streets in readiness for a call to the scene of the fire. We could see that the sky was all red, but the fire did not seem to be burning brightly. Suddenly all returned to our tents after we found out that the danger was not near to us. The fire was down in Army Town, a little ways from the main part of the camp. A huge fire had burned to the ground. The cause of the fire is unknown. The fire not only "burned" our cigarettes and a crap game system, but it brought Camp MacArthur much to the bad, in addition to burning several hundred yards of sidewalks. City fire departments aided in fighting the blaze. There was no wind until Wind Sam came.

This morning, the company started out to drill in one of the worst wind and dirt storm we have experienced since our arrival at Camp MacArthur. Although the movements of drill, the men were—everjoyed to hear the notes of "recall" sounding in the distance. We all slipped after our company met and were dismissed. After dismissal we went to our tents and held school on guard duty. The wind was blowing and the dust was flying something like a sand storm. We were out of our tents all day long. We even had to use our mess kits for dinner this noon, as it was impossible to keep the dishes and plates set on the table in the mess shack.

I don't remember if I told you about losing "Bob" or not. It happened last Sunday morning. Bob was wandering down by the river bank when a soldier named "Buck" saw him. He called to Bob and called for him to swim out in the stream and fetch the duck in to him. Bob, being just a young dog and not experienced enough in his tricks, he obeyed the hunter's orders. The fellow raised the gun to his shoulder and shot Bob. Some of our boys heard the shot, but when they arrived on the scene they found that he had been shot and after a vigorous search could not be found any place. Bob was given a decent burial, and today the boys are mourning the death of their friend. "Buck" shot Bob, but never find the fellow that shot "Bob" the boys will show him no mercy.

Mess sergeants of every organization of the 32nd division are supposed to submit regular reports of inspection men detailed to mess hall and mess kitchen duty, according to an official order issued yesterday at division headquarters.

Blank printed forms are to be supplied mess sergeants and a score of questions must be answered as to the fitness of the mess kitchen and mess hall. Here are a few of the questions which afford the layman at least a cursory "birds-eye view" of the discipline which governs the daily schedule of Army life.

"Personnel of kitchen": Is the cook clean? Does he understand what the ration is, where to get it, when to cook it, how to get it and what to do with it? Can he cook?

"Cooking": Are they clean, as to person, clothing, freshly shaved, hair cut short, finger nails short and clean? Do they evidence a fair knowledge of the proper way to wash their hands after using latrines?

In a fast ten-round boxing exhibition, Tuesday night, Sam Taylor received a decision in his favor over "Big Boy" Bob. Both men are soldiers stationed here. The bout was staged at the "Old Glory Theatre" near division headquarters.

Twenty-three new recruits, soldiers, regulars and privates of the 32nd division, yesterday day, observed "Liberty Day" by participation in various forms of athletics and listening to appeals for subscriptions to the second Liberty Loan issue.

The feature event of the day was a football game, staged between the 32nd division on eleven and the 126th infantry gridiron squad, in which the former aggregation emerged victorious with a score of 83 to 0. Incidentally, at the first time, the troops had been mustered in mass formation. The men marched from their various organizations to the athletic field, where they formed a human camp was "on the job" and there was music a plenty.

Early in the afternoon the 127th infantry regiment, 3,700 strong, paraded to the stadium to lend impetus to the Liberty Loan campaign.

Amid wild cheering the two contending factions battled for honors the day of football.

At first, the two sides met in a stiff and fast backed field maneuvers by both sides featured the day. Following is the foot ball line-up, and the play by quarters:

	Company E
Thirty-second	Pos. - 126 Infantry
Hogan, Clarke	le. - Brown
Ragle	lt. - DuVoy
Jacob's, George	lg. - Bowles
Koch	rg. - Austin
Hendrickson	rt. - McCrabb
Nichols	re. - Michalis
Welch	qb. - McKissack
Winley	rh. - Marx
Tippet	rh. - Johnson

Referee, Schimbakor. Umpire, Felton (Harvard). Head linesman, Lieutenant Dena.

First quarter: first quarter, 14:0; second quarter, 21-0; third quarter, 27-0; fourth quarter, 33-0.

First quarter: Tippet mucked left tackle for fourteen yards. Hanley and right and seven yards for touchdown, missed goal.

Third quarter: Tippet ran twenty yards around right end for touchdown, missed goal. Hanley ran twenty yards around right end for a touchdown, missed goal.

Fourth quarter: Walker Tippet, as some of the Jacksonville fans will remember, was formerly a Jacksonville boy and was a star on a Lawrence university team for a number of years. Both Sergeants Clarke and Corporal George Tippet this time made a fine showing.

The detail for today was as follows:

In charge of quarters, Sergeant Ellingson; fatigue, Corporal Bunker Privates Daetwiler, the collector.

Private Hageson, Jacobson, Knopp and Milbrandt.

Company Notes.

Private William Trescher is looking for a match in the winter game. Since the day he threw Hercules Reynolds.

Private Thorman has purchased a new hat and is some boy not. Nor looking fine and seems to be still growing.

Private Taylor is working hard these days, but complains of the dust. He tells us that he will like this back in "Old Wisconsin."

Private Mahlon Stillman has acquired the name of "Dad." We wonder why? He is always a father to the boys, helping them out, etc., the answer.

The regimental "jass band" is now smothering up the street playing "Oh Johnny." It reminds us of the dances.

Private Griepel enlisted with us to-day. He is an Edgerton boy and has come to us from Jefferson Barracks, Mo. We are glad to welcome him. We hope he will like our camp and company.

Private George W. A. Stendel is quite a church man and is seen wending his way to church every Sunday evening.

Crystal Camp, R. N. A. Red Cross Club will meet at the home of Mrs. E. G. Crowe, 550 S. Main street, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock for work. Present.

The O. E. S. Study class will meet next Thursday afternoon, November 1st at the home of Mrs. Robinson and Miss Hall, 515 S. Main street.

ALL CAFES DO NOT HAVE MEATLESS DAY

Two Restaurants in This City Fail to Comply With Demands of the Food Administrator.

Much indignation is expressed by the January 10 observers of meatless cafes, at the attitude of two cafes which do not observe meatless day. These cafes, after four weeks of meatless day campaigning, have not yet shown enough respect to the government to observe one of these meatless days.

The two cafes which do not observe meatless day are the Apollo, 1015 N. Milwaukee street, and the Play's on West Milwaukee street has only a meatless dinner. It is the concern of the Food Administration that the federal or city owners of these cafes should make the meatless days compulsory. The cafe owners would like to see this as it would then give all an even chance in the competition with those who now do not observe meatless day. They declare that those who are now at a disadvantage with those who do not observe meatless day.

The Apollo was especially indignant, saying that unless the meatless day was made compulsory they would be obliged to abandon it. They considered it unfair that those who do not observe meatless day are taking an unfair advantage of them. The Savoy bill of fare has on its list the following: Oyster stew, imported oysters, codfish and cream, baked oysters, codfish and cream, home baked beans, cheese omelette and jelly omelettes, besides their regular meatless short orders.

The Hotel Meyer has on its menu oysters, spaghetti with cheese and lobster. McDonald and sons have Italian soup, codfish, scalloped oysters, baked spaghetti, baked oysters, codfish and cream. According to R. J. McDonald, he is also of the opinion that meatless day ought to be compulsory.

Newells cafe on Academy street is not observing meatless day. The Commercial Hotel cafe serves meat, but have a complete meatless menu and advocate the meatless meal, but say they are unable to keep meat because of the law.

Hutchins cafe on North Main street includes meat on the menu, meatless ay being left to the discretion of the diners.

RESENTS CRITICISM OF THE FIGHT FANS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, Oct. 30.—The patriotic fight fans, treating him unfairly, the heavyweight champion is considerably annoyed because he has been accused of stopping out of a clinch with the boxer after having promised to take him on for a regular scrap.
When Benny took Freddie Welsh to a first-class trimming recently in New York he announced right off that he was going to enter some branch of service and fight for Uncle Sam, but now continued rolling along without any enlistment out of the new light-weight king. Criticisms then began to break up Benny's peace and he began to snarl at the critics.
Now that Benny has received an appointment and a commission that makes him a boxing instructor in one of the new training camps, he has received a promotion. He declares that right after he whipped Welsh he went to Washington and offered to enlist, but was told by officials that it was not wise for them to accept him at once.
Benny says he was told his services would be much more valuable if he worked as an athletic instructor, and with this advice he came back to New York to wait until he has received his commission he is ready with explanations.
Offers have been made to Leonard for bouts that would net him huge sums of money, but it is doubtful if the army can spare him for the time it would be necessary for him to go and make the battles. Of course, he is in constant good condition, through his work at the camp.

MORRIS MILLER

Manager Jack Barry of the Boston Sox ball team and four of his players who enlisted as yeomen in the naval reserves have been called for active service and ordered to report for duty. All are rated as first-class.
Manager Barry and Chick Shorten have been assigned to the training office in Boston. McNally and Eddie Shore are assigned to the first district paymaster's office. Duffy Lewis has not yet received his assignment, but it is believed he will be sent to the Mare Island Navy yard at San Francisco.

Vincent Campbell, former outfielder for the Newark Federal league club, was awarded a verdict for $5,997 in a suit for breach of contract against the Newark Federal league club. The defense claimed that it had arranged to transfer Campbell's contract to either the St. Louis or Cincinnati National league club, but he refused to accept such service and that such refusal relieved the obligations entered under the contract. The court held, however, that Campbell had a right to look to the Newark Federal for his pay and awarded him his verdict.

Providence fans are awakening to the fact that in the pending baseball changes they may lose their franchise better than Class A, possibly Class B, as their portion. It remains to be seen if the situation will awaken the Rhode Island fans. For several years they have been given a high grade of baseball, yet have failed to warm up to it. When their alibi was a dislike for alien ownership the club was hated by local people, but the results were no better. The past season the team was handled by Jack Egan, in than whom there is no more popular baseball man in Providence and Egan, making his debut as an international league manager, was in the pennant fight all the way, yet the public continued lukewarm. Providence will have no one but itself to blame in case it fails to get consideration in any plans that may be in the making.

Sunday ball is making progress in New York. Recently a number of men were arrested for arranging a Sunday game between independent teams. It was shown that the spectators paid for score cards. The cards were on a table at the entrance to the park and the fans could take or leave them. When the case came up for a hearing before the court, the justice presiding, whose name was Collins, dismissed the "criminals," saying that if a strict liberal interpretation of the statute were to be given it would prevent any liberty-loving citizen from indulging in any recreation on Sunday. "It would prevent hunting, golfing, fishing and the indulgence in athletics. If a boy were to play ball on the one day he was off, this law would make him a criminal, as would be a fisherman and those that play golf. I cannot conceive, personally, that there was a time in the history of the state of New York when those inclined to pass blue laws were so blue that they would deny all these pleasures, which are of themselves innocent and harmless."

Veteran baseball writers "covering" the world's series formed a new organization during the series. It is composed of men who have been writing baseball for at least fifteen continuous years. Out of some fifty or sixty who were on the job during the series but seventeen were found eligible for membership in the new organization of "Deans." Charley Dryden was elected supreme dean. He started writing baseball in 1884. Sam Crane, who started to scribble about the game in 1880, was elected super dean. The Deans will meet again in Philadelphia in 1918, so it is announced, but whether they expect to see a world's series in the Quaker City is not stated.

An Indianapolis baseball writer, commenting on the gossip that Jack Hendricks will be found managing a major league team next year, says Hendricks has a two-year contract to remain in Indianapolis and is not likely to throw down Jim McCall at a time when there is a chance for a new and better Class A league in sight. Maybe so, but Hendricks would be the making of any one of several major league clubs now burdened with drawbacks in the way of incompetent managers.

BADGER HOMECOMING WILL BE BIG EVENT

Madison, Oct. 30.—The biggest event of the year at the University of Wisconsin will be Homecoming day—next Saturday.

Then, along with a big celebration and entertainment throughout the capital, Minnesota and Wisconsin grid-iron forces will pit their strength on Randall field. The battle will be staged with a military setting.

The entire celebration will have a martial spirit. Many of the "boys" are now in the service of Uncle Sam at various training camps. A large number will be here Saturday for the "big doings."

Taking the place of dancing and other entertainment features of past years between the second and third quarters of the game, will be the dedication of the new field and stadium. Governors of Wisconsin and Minnesota are expected to be present for the ceremony.
The huge stadium has a total of 11,900 seats, the total amount appropriated for the stadium and field being $30,000.

OPEN DEER SEASON FAST APPROACHING

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Antigo, Wis., Oct. 30.—First snows always make the "old timers" climb into the garret for their hunting paraphernalia.
Those of Wisconsin's army of sportsmen who are not in training to hunt Gophers will find everything in their favor this far for deer hunting. The season is coming near.

It has been an excellent year for deer, out door men say, and although the "anti" on deer hunting is raised this year it is not expected to deter many of the real sportsmen who have an annual crack at the game. Some of those discouraged in former years with the fear of shooting a doe instead of a buck, are feeling easier. The "one buck" law having been repealed they may now kill one of either doe or buck.

However, officials fear a slaughter of fawn. They urge that everyone in the woods take greatest care not to destroy the young deer. To spare a doe of any size means more deer the next season and it is seldom the hunter actually cares for a young buck, they say, well up in seasons and with a good head, is always preferable and the hunter as a rule can rest assured that "someone else will get him if you don't."

SEIZURE OF STORES.

Just now we are at war with a foreign power. Our soldiers are in the trenches and we must take every advantage possible to insure their advance. Recently in Philadelphia an administrator of an estate found something odd about the balance of the fifty odd dollars that belonged to the imperial government of Germany and he promptly bought it. Liberty bond with the money. The thought it was the same investment possible.
The same time working a good for the nation. The seizure of German stores in this country is explained and condoned by an eastern publication, which says:

"While the United States was a neutral, commercial transactions within its borders, or within its jurisdiction, in behalf of Germany, were not illegal. The agents of the latter nation could purchase supplies for export practically without restriction.
From almost the very beginning of hostilities, Germany made extraordinary efforts to obtain cotton and other commodities through the channel of vessels under United States flag, or by arrangement with Holland, Great Britain, however, had declared cotton and other commodities greatly desired by Germany, contraband of war, and it was not within the province of the United States to interfere with the precautions Great Britain was taking for her own protection. Vessels carrying contraband were seized by British ports as fast as they appeared on the high seas. The seizure of the Dacia and the Wilhelmina, and similar incidents will readily be recalled. Those inter-ferences with the freedom of commerce were made much of by Germany. She had authorized, through a United States senator, for the south, an offer of sixteen cents a pound for one million bales of cotton, at a time when the current rate was below that point, provided the consignment was delivered in Bremen, and, when the influence commanded by this senator failed to enlist the necessary support, she undertook, through her agents and friends, to arouse an anti-British sentiment among the cotton growers.

"Meanwhile she was making purchases of cotton and other commodities in the United States through brokers in neutral European countries and their correspondents in America.
These purchases were placed in storage, and it was evidently the expectation of Germany that they would be carried to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, or Holland, in vessels of those nations
for transshipment to her own ports.
She apparently entertained also the hope that she would be able to obtain an early peace on her own terms, in which event she would have within reach sufficient raw material to start her factories going, in advance and to the disadvantage of Great Britain and France, and resume her foreign trade relations where they were broken off in August, 1914. It is now satisfactorily established that she succeeded in obtaining large quantities of the purchased supplies through the neutrality of the European neutrals named. But the latest revelations make it clear that the great bulk of the materials have remained stored in American ports.

"These goods might have remained safe in storage for Germany use after the war if the United States had not been forced to enter the conflict. An inventory of articles, it is asserted with seeming authority, would show that they comprise more than one million bales of cotton, a great stock of steel products, chemicals, oils, hardware, raw hides and miscellaneous commodities. A government official, on being questioned with regard to the value of the confiscated stores, is quoted as saying, 'Any estimate would sound ridiculous unless backed by an itemized statement of the holdings.'
It would run into figures which the ordinary mind would consider absurd.
Some figures have been mentioned,
however, which may be taken as foreshadowing those to be reported later.
It is announced, for example, that in addition to $2,500,000 worth of steel, oil, copper, chemicals, and similar stores, the cotton seized by the United States secret service agents has a value, at current quotations, of $143,- 250,000.

"The withdrawal from the markets of the tremendous quantities of material stored for Germany account has had not a little to do with creating shortages and with raising prices.
There is reason for believing that a subsidiary purpose in making these immense purchases was to tie up material which the allies otherwise would have obtained. The purchases, it must be remembered, were made before the United States entered the war, and, therefore, as business transactions, were perfectly legiti-mate, but since the United States entered the war it has had special need of the goods which Germany has had in storage.

"The Trading With the Enemy Act makes the seizure of all this material not only lawful, but obligatory. Moreover, the act requires all brokers and agents who have purchased and warehoused goods on German account to reveal the places of storage. Neglect to do this would constitute a crime. They were guilty of no criminal act in the first instance but they will be guilty if they shall attempt to cover up their transactions in behalf of an enemy nation.

"This find of an immense store of enemy cotton is particularly opportune. There is no doubt to the discovery of additional large hoards in warehouses now under investigation.
Whatever quantity may become available will, it is understood, be immediately distributed among the allied nations now in need of the staple.
Other confiscated German stores will,
it is said, likewise be so distributed.

"It is, perhaps, more difficult to estimate the moral than the intrinsic worth of these seizures. But regarded in either aspect they assume importance. They are exceedingly pleasing to the United States and its allies, and they must be exceedingly disappointing and disheartening to the enemy. Incidentally, they carry with them very conclusive proof of the alacrity of the United States secret service, something which in itself is precisely re-assuring."

ONE OF THE TESTS.

The recent Liberty bond subscription was one of the tests of loyalty that has been imposed upon the citizens of this nation. By this time it is pretty well known who subscribed and who did not. Of course there are circumstances that govern all cases and many a man would have offered his money more generously could he have afforded it. Patriotism is not always measured by dollars and cents.
Actions always speak louder than words. The man who goes out and seeks to induce others to purchase bonds and then states that he thinks these bonds will be sold at a discount within a few months might be classed with the conscientious objectors to the war. We are in this war to the finish. In order to accomplish the desired ends we have sold two issues of bonds that are backed by the government and they have been disposed of
at a premium or not remains to be seen, but it is safe to say they will not be sold at a discount. If a man believes these bonds will depreciate he had best sell them at once, for the nation at large will take them at their face value if fully paid, and they are as good as coin of the realm. The alien enemies within our borders may have bought these bonds to display their loyalty, but they are listed, and later the government will take care of them when the present business on hand is attended to. It is not always the alien enemy who is to be feared by all means, but some of American birth who are not in sympathy with the government because the present war does not meet with their approval, and interferes with their personal business. However the citizens of the United States have met the test imposed and responded nobly, so why worry over minor details? These will be taken care of as they arise.

COMPULSORY TRAINING.

The time is coming when compulsory training is going to be demanded of every male citizen of the United States of military age. We have pre-tently nearly reached it in the present demand for soldiers for the national army, but it is safe to say the next session of congress will take the matter up and pass some stringent regulations as regards it. As it stands now all male citizens who are physically sound and without restrictions as to dependents or working in the class of work essential to the government, between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one are liable for military service. Ten million were registered and many are already at the training camps. The new law will doubtless make the age of military service less, possibly eighteen years, and these young men will be required to devote some months each year to preliminary training that will fit them for military service if called upon. There is nothing like this military training, whether compulsory or voluntary, in other countries. The two companies of the High School Cadets who marched in the Liberty day demonstration have had but three weeks of military training, and they stood at attention and obeyed orders as men of long experience. Their training is longer and when this compulsory training law goes into effect they will be better prepared than those who have not had the rudiments of military training. Compulsory military training is coming and it is a certainty that the young men of the country who are not in that being organized for the service over will be the nucleus of the new

Well, have you selected your candi-

If not, wait and watch the various aspirants for the office will offer you that actions speak louder than words, and the man who has a son or

THE MISER.

The Miser stores his gold away
And counts his yellow stacks;
He nightly glows to see his notes
And loves their printed backs.
He worships money day by day,
He glories in his touch,
Yet happier far the many are
Who do not have so much.

Possession dulls the shining gold;
The buried hoard keeps for itself
The miser's life is lost.
Is never worth its cost.
The miser in his wealth alone
Who keeps his wealth alone
But reaps the woe of life although His gladness he could own.

The finest dollar's not the one
The miser hides away.
For silver's gold and so is gold
If idle it must stay.
The miser of all money hoers
Not in his riches true.
Can only shine with lustre fine
If good with them we do.

Some misers hoard for self alone,
Yet sometimes they spend,
Beneath earth's sky they live and die.
And never play the friend
They chase earth's joy with selfish greed.
As narrow souls they live,
And all the bliss of earth they miss Because they never give.

The first money mortal knows
Is that which he bestows;
Rich is the gift men make to lift
Another's weight of woe.
And he who plays the miser's part
It all he shows at life's quick close
Is gold that he has kept.

American public has been subjected to, in case of need.

Christmas is not so far away. Just remember those boys over in the trenches, the soldiers in the training camps, the men in the cantonments, and make your Christmas plans accordingly. Charity begins at home, but save some of it for a gift to the men who make it possible for you to enjoy your home and not be like the poor Belgians and Serbians, and thousands of others who have no homes left.

Everyone believes in insurance and some ninety thousand odd persons in Rock county took out policies the last few weeks to insure them against foreign invasion. These policies are in the form of the Liberty bonds. The government, headed by Uncle Sam, guarantees them.

We may soon expect the next draft of the selected men to be summoned to the various cantonments. By this time these vast military training schools will be in shape to receive them, and they will not suffer many of the inconveniences of those who went there at first.

The coal situation is not just what we are led to expect, but doubtless it will be cared for later on. Meanwhile it might be well to have a good supply on hand.

Here's the prize press agent offering of the week: (As Mutual sends it.)

Edna Goodrich, one of the most popular stars of the American stage, Mildred Manning, star in O. Henry stories.

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

It's different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on aluminum stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

"A Shine in Every Drop"

whose recent advent in motion picture drama has been widely discussed, is a hypnotist of extraordinary power.

Miss Goodrich declared that the power to compel concentrated attention in large gatherings of people is nothing less than hypnotic control, but the famous (deleted) star is far too modest to those who know her intimately.

"Since Miss Goodrich has been engaged in filming her plays at the Long Island studios her possession of an unusual control over human mind and matter has been frequently demonstrated. During long and arduous rehearsals some of the star's feminine associates become afflicted with nervous headaches, due to the hours spent under the studio lights.

"After Miss Goodrich had several times demonstrated her ability to banish headaches by fixing her great, luminous eyes upon the sufferer and snapping her fingers with a sharp command (come out of it, Steve!), called upon her for quick headache cures became insistent and frequent.

"Anybody can do it," says the star, laughingly. "All it takes is magnetism and will power."

INTERESTING ITEM CONCERNING EDNA Goodrich, now in films, is that rare avist, a theatrical personage who can't eat lobster. Her press agent avers the scarlet coated Homarus vulgaris is anathema to her.

Miss Goodrich, the world is informed, eagerly consumes the side-stepping beach crab of California from the tip of his thirteenth antennae to the edge of his calcareous armor.

When she catches him herself, but not otherwise.

Mildred Considine has been engaged as a scenario editor for Norma Talmadge. She is a daughter of John Considine of the Sullivan and John Considine vaudeville theaters, and has acted in Ade comedies for the Essanay besides writing many scenarios. She will adapt the continuity from the stories.

The six men whom Mary MacLane will demonstrate in her coming film "Love to Me," are a callow youth, a literary man, bank clerk, a prize fighter, a younger son, and the husband of another woman.

Evansville News

Evansville, Oct. 30.—The following extracts are taken from a letter written by Willis Decker from Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., to his father, Charles Decker, here, and will be of special interest to the Evansville friends of the eleven young men who enlisted from here in the radio company that were sent to Atlanta recently.

"Dear Father: I received your letter and sure was glad to hear from you. I have just finished work until six o'clock Monday morning. It is nine o'clock now and all the boys are out on a fifteen mile hike this morning, except another fellow by the name of Dietz from Evansville, Ind., and myself. We were left here to sweep the barracks and act as guard. All we have to do is to stay near the barracks to see that no one comes around. There is another camp right south of us about two miles where they keep all of the German captives, and they sure have a bunch. They are fellows that look suspicious. The weather is getting warm again today. It did not frost any last night but was foggy this morning. It cleared up about seven o'clock and is all right now, without a cloud in sight at the time. Our bunch of boys are all split up now, but are still in the same battalion. Brooks Gabriel and myself were left in the radio and wireless. I guess Dietz is going to be cook for our company, so I suppose I will die in about a month from indigestion. Hurd, Hatfield, Jones and Paul Mabie are in the Outpost company and are getting cold down here. I want you to send me one of my red sweaters and I can cut the neck out of it and wear it with know. We have to be in our shirt sleeves—no coat at all, no matter how cold it is. Of course a fellow like me, but gee! You just shake your teeth out."

The whole bunch had their picture taken yesterday in their suits, so when they are finished I will send one to you to give you some idea how I look all dressed up in Uncle Sam's clothes.

Dad, when I send my clothes home, I am going to send some growing right back of our barracks. I am right above the dining room and I can smell the dinner cooking. We have two negro cooks now, and sure they are getting some feed. Last night for supper we had fried liver with gravy, mashed potatoes, bread, coffee, and rice pudding with some kind of a syrup dressing that was good enough for anyone.

We have the finest bunch of officers that I ever saw. They are all men from the south. Sunday or Monday I am going to play ball with Wisconsin against Ohio. You see, this battalion is from over here. Honestly, I never felt so good before in my life. We don't get anything but fresh air and lots of physical exercise. My address is changed a little. It now is: Radio Company, 307 Signal Battalion, Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga.

Shortly before noon yesterday the fire department was called to a stock yard where it was found that an overhauled stove pipe had set fire to the roof of the office. The fire was soon extinguished by the use of chemicals.

This evening in the parlors of the Congregational church, the ladies of the church will give a social one whose arrangements have been in progress for some days past. For the speaker of the evening was to have been Ralph Chesbrough of Beloit, vice-consul from the United States to Beirut, Syria. Mr. Chesbrough has also been in the diplomatic service in Constantinople, Turkey. But when the United States entered into a state of war with the central powers our government recalled Mr. Chesbrough. But during the day yesterday a telegram was received from him, from Chicago, on his way to Washington, to which city he had received orders to report at once. That is, Mr. Chesbrough cannot be here, but promise that something good will be substituted at the social this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Brown entertained at dinner Sunday at their home on Second street. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cain and two children of Caledonia. Mrs. Margaret Rice of Cooksville. Mrs. Victor Eager and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Brown.

Jesse Prindle, who has been the guest of Evansville friends for a short time, left Sunday evening for his home in Hermiston, Oregon.

Richard Schlem of Chicago was an over Sunday visitor at his home here. Miss Ethel Stewart of Racine, who is spending her vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stewart, entertained the following friends from Racine over Sunday: Miss Louise Rowan and Dr. John Meacham.

Burr Tolles was a Milwaukee visitor the latter part of the week. Walter Goltmar, Sr., has been spending a few days at the home of Frank Hall in Whitefish.

Miss May Palmer left this afternoon for her new home in Atascadero, Cal. Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cole entertained at dinner Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Jay Baldwin and family, at their home on West Liberty street. Mr. Baldwin returned to Chicago, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wehner of Rahaboo spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schlem.

Bonnie Green of Magnolia was a recent Evansville visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brigham have decided not to leave Evansville to go on the farm he recently purchased near Alton. He has placed a renter on the farm.

Gazette Free Cooking School Opens Tomorrow at Terpsichorean Hall--Everyone Invited--Admission Free

WOMEN INVITED TO FREE COOKING SCHOOL

The Gazette Free Cooking school opens Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock at Terpsichorean Hall. Every woman in Janesville is invited to attend, and bring with her a spoon and saucer, as many dishes will be passed to be tested and inspected. For entertainment of those desiring to come early, a musical program will be rendered, C. W. Diebis, The Art Store having furnished a victrola.

Everything is in readiness for the Gazette Free Cooking School which opens on Wednesday afternoon at the Terpsichorean Hall. A veritable kitchen has been arranged for Mrs. McKoin's use during the week, and every recipe of Mrs. McKoin's economy program will be actually demonstrated and passed among the ladies in the audience to be inspected and tasted.

The lecture proper opens at two o'clock. The hall will be open for some time previous to that hour so that ladies desiring to come early and procure seats near the demonstration stand may do so. A musical program will be rendered for those desiring to come early and knit while they wait for the opening address by the Nashville lecturer.

Mrs. McKoin's program the first day will be largely on meats. How to cook and serve meats so as to utilize leftovers, and how to handle roasts with the least possible shrinkage, will be among the points brought out in the meat demonstrations. Aside from meats, cakes, salads and menus will be demonstrated and discussed. Mrs. McKoin besides being an expert food economist is also a skilled lecturer, and while in Janesville will teach some of the dainty things in the art of cookery. One of these will be the icing and decorating of cakes, and she will give out the famous McKoin icing recipe and teach the ladies how to make the beautiful floral designs with the colored icings and the simple paper tubes.

The Gazette gives the full assurance that this valuable course in instruction is absolutely without charge. This series of lectures has been made possible by the Gazette with the co-operation of various firms. The Janesville Electric company has supplied Mrs. McKoin with an electric range, and all of her cooking and delicate baking will be done with this appliance. Other articles in the kitchen, which is in the entire view of the audience, is the McDougall kitchen cabinet, a refrigerator and tables, furnished by the Ashcraft Furniture company. On Wednesday morning Mrs. McKoin and her assistants will be busily engaged preparing for the first day program, and will be unable to meet any local ladies. However, she gives the assurance that she will be in the auditorium on each of the succeeding mornings of the week and will receive ladies and answer any particular questions that the ladies desire to know. Every lady attending is requested to bring with her a spoon and saucer, as the various dishes demonstrated will be passed to be tested.

Economy Program.

Primarily, the whole week's program is designed to teach the ladies of Janesville new ways of economizing in foodstuffs and planning nourishing and well balanced menus at a minimum, and lower cost. Corn and rice play an important part in the recipes and recipes in which these products can be used three meals each day and yet avoid the monotony that comes from repeatedly using these cereals is one promised feature of each program. The use of vegetables and the making of salads which will reduce the meat bill is another point to be emphasized. Mrs. McKoin promises to serve the entire audience with ham sandwiches, and use one pound of boiled ham for three hundred sandwiches. Besides being an expert cook, skilled in the art of fooding, Mrs. McKoin is a professional teacher of food values, and this is a rare opportunity for the ladies of Janesville to procure this information without cost in any way.

Everyone is looking for bargains these days. The Gazette classified columns contain many of them each day.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Oct. 30.—The early winter weather is doing considerable damage to tobacco in the sheds. The late crops have failed to cure and the weather being cold has frozen the tobacco in the sheds. Several insurance companies in Vernon county have been hauling from the sheds to the fields again to be used for fertilizer. Some farmers have resorted to firing their crops as they do in the south. That is building a fire in the field to raise the temperature to keep the tobacco from freezing. This method of curing the Wisconsin tobacco is not a decided success. Tobacco shed early has in many cases entirely cured and will be ready for stripping as soon as the weather warms. There has never in the history of the state been such a difference in the quality of the early and late tobacco as prevails this year.

Contracts for automobile trailers for the U. S. Army will be let by the government at Washington today. J. W. Menhall and A. McIntosh of the local trailer concern are at Washington with one of the large trailers and will demonstrate the same to the army. One of the largest trailers was shipped to Washington by express for the demonstration. The trailer weighed three thousand pounds and the express bill amounted to about $75.00. The local concern was unaware that the trailer would be bought by the government on practical demonstration and Mr. McIntosh and Mr. Menhall did not leave this fact until they had gone as far as Chicago when Mr. McIntosh returned to the city and shipped the trailer to Washington by express.

The Gazette jitney bus was stuck in a snow bank for over half an hour near the House residence causing considerable delay with this paper delivery last evening. The public schools of the city will be closed Thursday and Friday of this week to allow the teachers to attend a teachers convention to be held at Milwaukee. This will allow the football squad extra time for practice prior to the game with Stoughton at Southton Saturday.

German Lutheran Church will be entertained at the home of Miss Elsie Ratzlaff this evening. Herman Kravick was a business caller at Middleton today. Will Schultz and Otto Schlichting departed for Milwaukee yesterday where they have secured employment. Mrs. H. Krause, of Ft. Atkinson, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fritzke.

FORMER JANESVILLE YOUNG MEN IN ARMY

Edward, Joseph and Donald Oliver, Formerly of This City, Now in Military Service.

Many Janesville people will be interested to know that the three sons of B. A. Oliver, formerly of this city, are all in military service. Mr. Oliver and family made Janesville their home for several years until they moved to Racine, where Mr. Oliver is now manager of the Wisconsin Telephone company office in that city. Edward, the oldest of the three, is now a master signal electrician at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich., while Joseph is a first sergeant in Battery C of the One-Hundred Twenty-first Regular Heavy Artillery, stationed at Waco, Tex. Donald, the youngest of the lot, after serving as a wireless operator on different warships for six years, is now first sergeant in the signal corps at Camp Grant.

A picture of the three young men, taken while they were at home on furloughs, appeared in a Milwaukee paper Sunday morning, along with an article about some of the sacrifices which Racine is making to help win the war.

INTEREST GROWS IN ADVERTISING CLASS

In Addition to Class Instruction Prof. Nichols Gives Local Merchants Personal Assistance in Their Advertising Problems.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the class in retail advertising which is being held every Wednesday evening at the vocational school in the Lincoln school building on South High street. Two meetings have already been held and eight more are planned. The class are making a study of the most practical and modern methods in retail advertising. The class meetings at 8 p. m. and an hour is given up to a talk on some phase of the subject. This is followed by a general discussion in which individual problems are taken up and thrashed out. Actual advertisements will be written later on the university extension division, who is conducting the course, is a practical advertising man of wide experience in advertising ventures and also in the teaching of advertising. He is also conducting a class at Beloit, on Tuesday evenings. The following outlines show the various problems that are being taken up in the class and that are covered in the printed pamphlets which are given out.

Assignment 1 takes up the nature of advertising, what it will accomplish if properly used, why the progressive store must advertise, the class of goods which are best suited to advertising.

Assignment 2 defines a selling point, tells how to find selling points of merchandise, the manner in which the effective selling points of merchandise may be winnowed from the ineffective.

Assignment 3 deals with writing the body of the advertisement, shows how the selling points may be most effectively clothed in language. Assignment 4 goes into the matter of the headline and sub-head, makes clear the various types of headline and which are most effective for various situations.

Assignment 5 outlines the steps in making a layout or dummy for one article advertisement.

Assignment 6 includes type measurements, the point system, how to figure the amount of space your advertisement will occupy, body, type, sizes, faces and names, the same for display type, printing terms. Assignment 7 covers the use of borders and illustrations, from both the mechanical and artistic point of view, and also goes into the matter of proof reading.

Assignment 8 discusses the relative importance of large and small space, tells how to make the most of small space, points out the salient features of display for the many-article advertisement.

Assignment 9 comprises an outline of the whole retail advertising campaign, takes up the year plan, the necessary reports, how to base advertising on the division of the appropriations both as to time and medium, and also points out the value of the newspaper and street car cards as mediums.

Assignment 10 is a continuation of the discussion of advertising mediums, taking up circulars, the store paper, package inserts, and a number of others.

Assignment 11 takes up the sales letter, showing how to write a strong sales letter, what subjects to touch upon and when to touch them.

Assignment 12 outlines a mail order campaign, including the various details which must be considered in order to make a successful bid for business by mail.

Assignment 13 treats of window display, interior display and arrangement, and show cards.

Assignment 14 is a broad treatise upon correlating all the sales efforts of the retail store, touches on questions of policy, training of clerks, store records, word of mouth advertising, how to take advantage of the regular trade movements, store organization, etc.

Wedding Presents in Hungary. Wedding presents in Hungary are given only to poor couples to help them to get their home together. The girl friends of the bride show attention by making cakes of various kinds to be partaken of at the wedding feast. There is no wedding cake, as we understand it, but each guest receives a kind of sweet cake of the substance of chocolate biscuits made in the form of a ring about ten inches in diameter.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Oct. 30.—A family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Colby Sunday. This is an annual event and generally comes about Thanksgiving time. It was decided to have the gathering earlier this year on account of Mr. and Mrs. Gail Barker moving to Hebron, Ill., soon, and also because Mr. and Mrs. Colby have been in the south in the near future to spend the winter.

Miss Helen Reilly of West Allis, was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leffingwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis of Racine, visited here Sunday at the home of Frank and George Brown. The girls at the normal school had their annual fancy dress party Friday evening at the old gymnasium. Dancing and games were enjoyed and light refreshments of doughnuts and apples were served.

Miss Mabel Brimstad of Madison, visited at the Taft home Sunday.

Miss Ida Dabil of Waukesha, visited Miss Margaret Bloodgood Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Amy Smith returned to Janesville last evening after having been here several days, taking care of Mrs. Thomas Lerwill, who has been quite seriously ill.

George McTree is confined to his home on Center street, having suffered a stroke of apoplexy while at work in the Register office last Friday.

Lectures will hold. This Evening at Terpsichorean Hall Will be Given by Lakota Club Members.

White shirts and evening dresses will not be in prominence this evening at Terpsichorean hall, where the Lakota club will hold their annual Halloween party. It will be a regular old-fashioned hard times party with those attending dressed in garbs which will harmonize with the occasion.

The club will have as their guests the members of the club, as well as many of the younger men of the city who are not members of the club. The hall has been decorated for the occasion and many surprises are in store for those who attend. The Lakota club jazz orchestra of twelve pieces will furnish the music for the occasion, which will start promptly at eight o'clock. Refreshments will be served, including elder pumpkin pie, apples and other good things.

LATEST ARMY RULING ON EXEMPTED MEN

Latest Draft Classification Will Affect All Men in This District Holding Exemption Certificates.

Provost Marshal General Crowder's outline of the new draft classifications, which was issued yesterday, will affect every exempted man in this district. The plan is complete in all but details and has been approved by the President. It probably will be announced in full before the end of the week.

Under the new ruling every man now holding an exemption certificate will be mailed a "questionnaire." He will be required to fill out this blank, answering the questions. These questions are carefully devised to determine whether his occupation and commitments at home make it wise not to withdraw him from the field. There is a page or more of questions listed under each of the five classes.

Receiving his booklet, the registrant writes his name on the cover and marks an "X" in the block representing the class in which he believes he should be listed. For instance, a single man not engaged in vital war work will be in class No. 1, the first to be called; married men with non-dependent wives and not engaged in vital war work will be in class No. 2, agriculturalists in No. 3, married men with dependents in No. 4, and cripples and others exempted by the provisions of the law in No. 5.

After filling out the answers to the questions, he takes the booklet to the local exemption board, where he swears to the truth of his statements. The board then examines the answers and approves or changes the classification claimed by the registrant.

These men who were exempted by the local board, are still subject to military service unless physically disqualified or non-citizens.

The blanks will be mailed out in a week or so, so all men whom this affects should be ready to fill in their answers, so that the work of classifying the list may be finished as soon as possible.

WANT TELEGRAPHERS FROM THIS DISTRICT

U. S. Issues a Call for the Preparation of 41 Men From This District—Classes at Vocational School.

Following the announcement of the government that a vast army of telegraphers will be put on the field, the state council of defense of Wisconsin has been asked to furnish 900 of the army. The first district, in which Janesville is included, has been asked to furnish 41 of these men with the cooperation of the vocational school of this city.

Simon Smith, chairman of the county council of defense, and Howard Voss, secretary, are making efforts to secure the men and are sending letters to men of the draft age telling them of the excellent opportunities offered in this service. The only restriction as to those who may take the course is that the men must be of the draft age before they may enter the course.

The advancement in this service is very rapid and depends entirely upon ability and willingness to work. The fact is that there are more non-commissioned officers in this branch of the service than in any other branch.

Free instruction in telegraphy will be given at the vocational school of this city, located at the Lincoln school, on two evenings a week. The class will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings at 7:30 for a two hour session. Frank Mohns, manager of the West Union telegraph office in this city will have charge of the class which will begin its activities as soon as the required number of ten has been secured.

Telegraphy is not hard to learn. Men are preparing themselves in six weeks in the Chicago Board of Trade school by taking instructions but four nights a week. Ability to send and receive fifteen words a minute qualifies for the service.

Following the completion of the course at the vocational school the men if they are drafted, will be sent to signal stations where they will receive intensive training in telegraphy, wireless, and the fundamentals of electricity. The country at the present time is in immediate need of telegraphers and this opportunity is expected to be received with favor by the men of draft age to get into this form of service for the government.

NEW VOCATION FOR GIRLS IN NEW YORK

Would-be subway guard practicing on one of the cars of the E. R. T.

The newest field of labor that has been thrown open to women as a direct result of the war has to do with the operation of subway trains in Greater New York. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit, running beneath Fourth avenue in Brooklyn, has started a class of fifty girls training for positions as guard on that road and the first of the female "crisis" will take their places on the trains of the company within the next few days.

DEPENDENTS CARED FOR BY THE STATE

Madison, Wis., Oct. 30.—Upwards of $5,000 is expended monthly by the state of Wisconsin to care of the dependents of soldiers from Wisconsin who are engaged in the war. B. J. Gaste of the adjutant general's office, who has charge of this branch of the service, says that aid already has been extended to 230 and that there are upwards of fifty additional applications on file. While the aid varies all the way from $20 to $50 depending upon the number of dependents, Mr. Gaste says that the average is a little over $25.

Checks to these dependents are sent out monthly from the office of the adjutant general. The warrants are made out in the office of the state treasurer and sent to the adjutant general for forwarding to the dependents. The federal law on this subject becomes effective Nov. 1. A number of applications have already been received from dependents in the state who are making application under the federal law. The adjutant general's office will give every aid in helping persons entitled to federal aid obtaining it under the federal law.

SPEAKER CLARK PREDICTS GREATER PROFITS TAXES

Washington, Oct. 30.—Raising money. That is speaker Clark's terse answer to the question: "What will be the chief work at the next session of congress?" "However," he said, "I think we will not raise as much as we did last session, $21,000,000, as we did last session, $21,000,000. The ships we paid for, the aircraft we authorized, and a lot of the guns and military material he bought, won't have to be duplicated. But there'll be enough to raise to keep us busy. I think we will have about a fifty-fifty split on taxes and bonds." This will necessitate greater profits-taxes. The present ratio is about sixty-five thirty-five, with bonds on the long end.

PETEY DINK—CUTTING DOWN THE COST, INDEED.

Less Gospel Than It keeps wives as busy providing things for the inner man as it does husbands in providing things for the outer woman.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

AN IDEAL LIME TREATMENT
for those suffering from chronic or acute pulmonary and bronchial troubles, or coughs or colds.
ECKMAN'S ALTERNATIVE
The Calcium preparation which may be taken by the average person without disturbing digestion. An efficient remedy for all these troubles. Contains no Alcohol, Narcotics or other harmful drugs.
$2 size, now $1.50. $1 size, now 80c.
Sold by all leading druggists.
Eckman Laboratories, Philadelphia.

Stop Itching Eczema

Never mind how often you have tried and failed, you can stop burning itching eczema quickly by applying a little zemo furnished by any druggist for 35c. Extra large bottle, $1.00. Healing begins the moment zemo is applied. In a short time usually every trace of eczema, redness, pimples, rash, blackheads and similar skin diseases will be removed. For clearing the skin and making it vigorously healthy, always use the penetrating, antiseptic liquid. It is not a greasy salve and it does not stain. When others fail it is the one dependable treatment for skin troubles of all kinds. The E. W. Ross Co., Cleveland, O.

Women Doing Men's Work

One of the most striking results of the great war in Europe, is the extent to which women are doing the work of men. Travellers to England and France report that practically every able-bodied man is in uniform, and women by the thousands are engaged in doing men's work—acting as conductors and drivers on the cars and doing all sorts of heavy work besides. This shows unexpected possibilities in what has been mistakenly called the weaker sex. Women are subjects to ailments to which men do not have, and when so little become weak, helpless sufferers. But a remedy has been found. For forty years, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been making such women well and strong, and as able to do work as any other woman. Advertisement.

Neuralgia Headaches

After shopping or after a hard day are quickly relieved with Sloan's Liniment. So easy to apply, no rubbing, and so promptly effective. Cleanser and more convenient than many plaster and ointments. It does not stain the skin, or clog the pores. Every home should have a bottle handy for sprains, strains, lame back, rheumatic pains and stiff, sore muscles and joints. Generous sized bottles at all druggists, 25c., 50c., $1.00.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $3, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Really done.

If you combined the curative properties of very known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare. Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (60 cents worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 65 cents and gives you a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils. This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and helps the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs. To avoid disappointment, be sure to ask your druggist for 62 1/2 ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Beyond the Frontier

by RANDALL FARRISH

A Romance of Early Days in the Middle West

Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "The Maid of the Forest," etc.

"No, madame; not now. I shall not be consulted, nor asked to be present. I am under strict order from La Salle not to oppose La Barre's officers, and even if I were disposed to disobey my chief, I possess no force with which to act. I have but ten men on whom I could rely, while they number over forty." He leaned closer, whispering, "Our policy is to wait, and act after the prisoner has been condemned."

"How? You mean a rescue?"

"Ay, there lies the only hope. There is one man here who can turn the trick. He is D'Artigny's comrade and friend. Already he has outlined a plan to me, but I gave no encouragement. Yet, now that I know the truth, I shall not oppose. Have you courage, madame, to give him your assistance? 'Tis like to be a desperate venture."

I drew a deep breath, but with no sense of fear.

"Yes, monsieur. Who is the man?"

"Francois de Boisronquet, the one who led the rescue party last night."

"A gallant lad."

"Ay, a gentleman of France, a darling heart, tonight."

The door opened, and the figure of a man stood outlined against the brighter glow without. De Tonty was on his feet, frantically, ere I even realized it was Cassion who stood there, glaring at us. Behind him two soldiers waited in the sunshine.

"What is the meaning of this, M. de Tonty?" he exclaimed, with no pretense of friendliness. "A rather early morning call, regarding which I was not even consulted. Have husbands no rights in this wilderness paradise?"

"Such rights as they uphold," returned the Italian, erect and motionless. "I am always at your service."

"Tis in the Governor's Own Hand!"

M. Cassion. Madame, I have conversed without permission. If that be crime, I answer for it now, or when you will."

It was in Cassion's heart to strike. I read the desire in his eyes, in the swift clutch at his sword hilt; but the sarcastic smile of De Tonty's thin lips robbed him of courage.

"His best you curb your tongue," he snarled, "or I will have you in the guardhouse with D'Artigny. I command now."

"So I hear. Doubtless you could convict me as easily."

"What do you mean?"

"Only that your whole case is a tissue of lies."

"Pah! you have her word for it; no doubt. But you will sing a different song presently. Ay, and it will be her testimony which will hang the villain."

Now will you confess the truth?" "I shall conceal nothing, monsieur." "Twill be best that you make no attempt," he sneered, his old bragging spirit reasserting itself as the Tonty kept silent. "I have guard here to escort you to the commandant's office."

"You do me honor," I turned to De Tonty. "Shall I go, monsieur?"

"I think it best, madame," he replied soberly, his dark eyes contemptuously surveying Cassion. "To refuse would only strengthen the case against the prisoner. M. Cassion will not, I am sure, deny me the privilege of accompanying you. Permit me to offer my arm."

I did not glance toward Cassion, but felt no doubt as to the look on his face; yet he would think twice before laying hand on this stern soldier who had offered me protection. The guard at the door fell aside promptly, and permitted us to pass. Some order was spoken in a low tone, and they fell behind with rifles at trail. Once in the open I became, for the first time, aware of irregular rifle firing, and observed in surprise men posted upon a narrow staging, along the side of the log stockade.

"Is the fort being attacked?" I asked.

"There has been firing for some days," he answered, "but no real attack. The savages merely hide yonder amid the rocks and woods, and strive to keep us from venturing down the trail. Twice we have made sorties, and driven them away, but 'tis a useless waste of fighting." He called to a man posted above the gate: "How is it this morning, Jules?"

The soldier glanced about cautiously, keeping his hand below cover.

"Thick as flies out there, monsieur," he answered, "and with a marksman or two among them! Not ten minutes since Rowan got a ball in his head."

"And no orders to clear the devils out?"

"No, monsieur—only to watch that they do not form for a rush."

The commandant's office was built against the last stockade—a long but no more pretentious than the others. A sentry stood at each side of the closed door, but De Tonty ignored them and ushered me into the room. It was not large, and was already well filled, a table littered with papers occupying the central space, De Baugis and De la Durantaye seated beside it while numerous other figures were standing pressed against the walls. I recognized the familiar faces of several of our party, but before I recovered from my first embarrassment De Baugis arose, and with much politeness offered me a chair.

De Tonty remained beside me, his hand resting on my chair back, as he coolly surveyed the scene. Cassion pushed past, and occupied a vacant chair, between the other officers, laying his sword on the table. My eyes swept about the circle of faces seeking D'Artigny, but he was not present. But for a slight shuffling of feet, the silence was oppressive. Cassion's unpleasant voice broke the stillness.

"M. de Tonty, there is a chair yonder reserved for your use."

"I prefer remaining beside Madame Cassion," he answered calmly. "It would seem she has few friends in this company."

"We are all her friends," broke in De Baugis, his face flushing. "But we are here to do justice, and avenge a foul crime. 'Tis told us that madame possesses certain knowledge which has not been revealed. Other witnesses have testified, and we would now listen to her word. Sergeant of the guard, bring in the prisoner."

He entered by way of the rear door, manacled, and with an armed soldier on either side. Countless and bareheaded, he stood erect in the place assigned him, and as his eyes swept the faces, his stern look changed to a smile as his glance met mine. My eyes were still upon him, seeking eagerly for some message of guidance, when Cassion spoke.

"M. de Baugis will question the witness."

"The court will pardon me," said D'Artigny. "The witness to be heard is madame."

"Certainly, what means your interruption?"

To spare the lady unnecessary embarrassment. She is my friend, and, no doubt, may find it difficult to testify against me. I merely venture to ask her to give this court the exact truth."

"Your words are impertinent."

"No, M. de Baugis," I broke in, understanding all that was meant. "Sieur d'Artigny has spoken in kindness, and has my thanks. I am ready now to bear witness frankly. What is it you desire me to tell, monsieur?"

"The story of your midnight visit to the Mission garden at St. Ignace, the night Hugo Chevet was killed. Tell it in your own words, madame."

As I began my voice trembled, and I was obliged to grip the arms of the chair to keep myself firm. I read sympathy in De Baugis' eyes, and adressed him alone. Twice he asked me questions, in so kindly a manner as to win instant reply, and once he checked Cassion when he attempted to interrupt, his voice stern with authority. I told the story simply, plainly, with no attempt at equivocation, and when I ceased speaking the room was as silent as a tomb. De Baugis sat motionless, but Cassion stared at me across the table, his face dark with passion.

"Wait," he cried as though thinking me about to rise. "There are questions yet."

"Monsieur," said De Baugis coldly. "If there are questions it is my place to ask them."

"Ay," angrily beating his hand on the table, "but it is plain to be seen the woman has bewitched you. No, I will not be denied! I am commandant here, and with force enough behind me to make my will law." Scowl

Cassion Stared at Me Across the Table, His Face Dark With Passion.

If you will, but here is La Barre's commission, and I dare you ignore it. So answer me, madame—you saw D'Artigny bend over the body of Chevet—was your uncle then dead?"

"I know not, monsieur; but there was no movement."

"Why did you make no report—was it to shield D'Artigny?"

I hesitated, yet the answer had to be made.

"The Sieur d'Artigny was my friend, monsieur. I did not believe him guilty, yet my evidence would have cast suspicion upon him. I felt it best to remain still and wait."

"You suspected another?"

"Not then, monsieur, but since."

Cassion sat silent, not overly pleased with my reply, but De Baugis smiled grimly.

"By my faith," he said, "the tale gathers interest. You have grown to suspect another since, madame—dare you name the man?"

My eyes sought the face of De Tonty, and he nodded gravely.

"Gets-It," 2 Drops, Cerns Peel Off!

For 25 Cents Peel Off 25 Corns.

"Gets-It," the greatest corn discovery of any age, makes joy-walkers out of corn-hippers. It makes you feel like the Statue of Liberty. Buy a "liberty" bottle of "Gets-It" right now—free yourself at once again.

all corn misery. It will peel off painlessly, in one complete piece, any corn, old or young, hard or soft, or between the toes, any callus or any corn that has resisted everything else you have ever used. Off it comes like magic. Guaranteed.

All you need is two or three drops of "Gets-It," that's all. "Gets-It" is the only safe way in the world to treat a corn or callus. It's the sure way—the way that never fails. It is tried and true—used by millions. Never irritates the flesh or makes the toes sore.

It always works: peels-corns off like a banana-skin. 25c a bottle is all you need pay for "Gets-It" at any drug store, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Janesville and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by South Druggists, McCue & Buss, J. E. Baker, V. T. Sherer.

"It can do no harm, madame," he muttered softly. "Put the paper in De Baugis' hand."

I drew it, crumpled, from out the bosom of my dress, rose to my feet, and held it forth to the captain of dragoons. He grasped it wonderingly. "What is this, madame?"

"One page from a letter of instruction. Read it, monsieur; you will recognize the handwriting."

Dinner Stories

At the end of the first act of the play the man in the third row of the pit turned to his friend.

"There's one thing I can't overlook in the woman in front of us," he said seriously.

"What's that?" asked his companion curiously.

"Her hat!" snapped the first man.

A certain lad threw a large stone at the village constable one day, hitting him heavily on the helmet. The perpetrator of the outrage escaped detection until, on examining closely the constable, who had struck him, the constable remembered having seen it lying on the window sill of a house, whose occupant he forthwith charged with the assault.

"I experimented with the 'stone,' your worship," the policeman explained in court, "and found that when I threw it at an old helmet of mine it made an exactly similar noise."

"But what good was that when your head wasn't inside the 'helmet'?" asked the suspect.

"Ah," returned the triumphant officer, "I thought of that, and put a block of wood inside, just the same as if my head was there!"

A certain five-year-old boy who, in his earliest trousers, could only thrust his hands through his belt for want of pockets, had his heart rejoiced at last with a pair of trousers which had real pockets in them.

His first act was to come down to a male relative with his hands stuck proudly in these pockets and to exclaim:

"Look, I've got pockets with floors in 'em."
